Criterion: 7 Institutional Values and Best Practices

7.2: Best Practices

Best practices as hosted on the Institutional website for 7.2.1

7.2.1: Describe two best practices successfully implemented by the Institution as per NAAC format provided in the Manual

7.2.1: Describe two best practices successfully implemented by the Institution as per NAAC format provided in the Manual

Best Practice 1: Environmental Sensitivity

Objectives:

- Creating environmental awareness.
- Conserving natural resources, and the environment.
- Promoting a clean, green environment.
- Making the public conscious of dangers to the environment.

The Context:

With growing awareness of the dangers that development is posing to the environment, the only way forward is a collective responsibility towards and ownership of the environment. The need to initiate action for the protection of our immediate environment is perceived as urgent. Unless this awareness comes in the formative years and when people are still young, chances are, it never will. The Practice: The Government's mandate that all students will study EVS as a compulsory/qualifying paper is implemented in letter and spirit. To convert this bookish knowledge of issues pertaining to the environment into behavioral practice, the college encourages and inspires students to participate in multiple activities throughout the year that foster in them, the sensitivity that is critically required. These activities are undertaken under the aegis of NSS, NCC, Rovers and Rangers, and Eco Club. Students have been participating in tree-plantation drives in collaboration with the Department of Forests, Himachal Pradesh. They have been planting trees/plants around the campus to enhance the green cover. The camps organized by the NSS encourage students to assist villagers in cleaning up their surroundings of non-degradable waste like polythene and plastic. They get to learn much from this collaborative effort from the villagers and their indigenous understanding of nature. Similar activities are undertaken from time to time by the NCC, Eco Club, and Rovers/Rangers. Initiatives like energy conservation, use of renewable resources, water harvesting, garbage disposal, use of solar water heating, and solar power generation have been taken up by the college. Students attend lectures/seminars on environmental awareness. Students are encouraged to walk to college or use bicycles instead of driving to college. The campus is located on one of the restricted roads of the town helps us limit the inflow of vehicular traffic. We plan to activate our solar heating system in the hostel soon. The rainwater is harvested in tanks and the water thus collected is utilized for non-drinking purposes. Evidence of success: The college campus and areas beyond have benefitted from our plantation activity. Lectures/seminars have motivated students to keep the area green/clean. Our attempts to preserve energy and water are showing small but encouraging results. There is visible awareness amongst students regarding the appropriate disposal of waste. They do not litter the campus and they invariably throw garbage in segregated garbage bins.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required:

Shimla is a city on a hilltop with little area and scope to expand or accommodate the needs of its growing population. Most people seem to be aware of the concerns theoretically, but when environmentally sensitive action requires them to surrender a part of their convenience, all Philosophy becomes only that...empty words that sound good. Small steps by college students fail to meet true appreciation.

TREE PLANTATION AT SHURALA

Date: 24-07-19

Location: Shurala, Shimla, Himachal Pradesh

Report of Tree Plantation Drive led by Vikram Bhardwaj Asstt. Prof. Department of History, COE Government College Sanjauli

On 24-07-19, a group of students from the Department of History, NCC, NSS, and Rover and Rangers of COE Government College Sanjauli participated in a tree plantation drive at Surala. The drive was led by Vikram Bhardwaj, Assistant Professor of the Department of History.

The plantation drive was aimed at promoting awareness about the importance of trees and to encourage the students to take an active role in protecting the environment. The location of the drive was chosen based on the fact that Surala has a low tree cover, and the area needed reforestation.

The drive began early in the morning with the students gathering at the designated location. Vikram Bhardwaj gave a brief introduction about the importance of trees and the need for their conservation. He stressed the fact that planting trees is one of the easiest and most effective ways to combat climate change.

The students were then divided into groups and assigned different areas for plantation. The saplings were provided by the forest department, and the students were instructed on how to plant them properly. The students worked enthusiastically and with great energy, and within a few hours, they had planted over 200 saplings.

The drive was not only about planting trees, but also about educating the students on the importance of taking care of the saplings after planting. Vikram Bhardwaj emphasized the need for regular watering, weeding, and other maintenance activities to ensure that the saplings grew into healthy trees.

Overall, the tree plantation drive was a huge success. It not only contributed to the reforestation of Surala but also created awareness among the students about the importance of trees and the environment. It is hoped that such drives will be conducted regularly to promote environmental conservation and awareness among the students.

TREE PLANTATION AT CHUNDU PEAK THEOG

Location: Chundu Mata Temple, Theog

Report of Tree Plantation Drive Led by Vikram Bhardwaj Assoc. Prof. Department of History, COE Government College Sanjauli, and Dr. R.L. Sharma Officiating Principal GC Theog

On 6-08-21, a group of students from the Department of History, COE Government College Sanjauli, and NCC students of GC Theog participated in a tree plantation drive at Chundu Mata Temple, Theog. The drive was led by Vikram Bhardwaj, Assistant Professor of the Department of History, and Dr. R.L. Sharma, Officiating Principal of GC Theog.

The plantation drive was aimed at promoting awareness about the importance of trees and to encourage the students to take an active role in protecting the environment. The location of the drive was chosen based on the fact that the area was in need of reforestation.

The drive began early in the morning with the students gathering at the designated location. Vikram Bhardwaj and Dr. R.L. Sharma gave a brief introduction about the importance of trees and the need for their conservation. They stressed the fact that planting trees is one of the easiest and most effective ways to combat climate change.

The students were then divided into groups and assigned different areas for plantation. The saplings were provided by the forest department, and the students were instructed on how to plant them properly. The students worked enthusiastically and with great energy, and within a few hours, they had planted over 150 saplings.

The drive was not only about planting trees, but also about educating the students on the importance of taking care of the saplings after planting. Vikram Bhardwaj and Dr. R.L. Sharma emphasized the need for regular watering, weeding, and other maintenance activities to ensure that the saplings grew into healthy trees.

In addition to the successful planting of new saplings, the students and faculty also took the initiative to check on the health of the plants from earlier plantation drives in the area. They watered and cared for these plants as well, ensuring their continued growth and survival. This highlights the commitment of the participants to not just plant new trees but also to take care of the existing ones. The drive not only contributes to increasing the green cover but also creates a sense of responsibility towards environmental conservation among the students and the local community. The efforts of the students and faculty members are truly commendable, and it is hoped that such initiatives will continue to inspire and motivate others to take similar steps towards preserving the environment.

Overall, the tree plantation drive was a huge success. It not only contributed to the reforestation of the area but also created awareness among the students about the importance of trees and the environment. It is hoped that such drives will be conducted regularly to promote environmental conservation and awareness among the students.

Practice 2:Social Outreach through NSS*Objectives:

Inculcating values like; social responsibility, sensitivity, respect for diversity, and self worth.

Preparing students for selfless service.

Context:

NSS of the college seeks to develop the personality of the students and work towards social transformation. Their role and responsibility became more enhanced during and after the Covid-19 pandemic.

Practice:

In the last couple of years, the NSS volunteers have shown exceptional enthusiasm in their engagement with the community. We have two sanctioned units that should ideally have 100 students each but the number went up to 300 in the session 2022-23. During the pandemic, when every one was expected to stay home to be safe, our volunteers were out on the road, helping the district administration in maintaining the prescribed Covid protocol, distributing masks, organizing covid testing camps and maintaining cleanliness. They offered online teaching sessions to students from economically underprivileged families of the city. It is out of this activity that our most significant contribution took birth.

Mission Gyanodaya.

Initiated by the volunteers, Mission Gyanodaya began as a drive to collect books and stationary from students of the college; books that they had outgrown in interest and relevance. The first such collection was about 2000 books. These books were then sent to rural areas for distribution to children who might need them. The NSS unit then encouraged volunteers from other colleges across the state to join this mission. By the end of the first year of its inception, the students had distributed 35000 books and reached out to more than 300 students for online teaching-learning. Mission Gyanodaya now has collaboration from institutions in other states like Karnataka and Punjab. The Mission received appreciation and mention at the national level. Fifteen children from neighbouring Sanjauli were adopted to be taught in person throughout the year. These children from various age-groups benefitted immensely from this interaction. They were regular guests on the campus in NSS functions and shared stage with the volunteers on several occasions.

Evidence of success:

Social work in the adopted urban community was highly appreciated. Volunteers reported a sense of personal satisfaction. Economically weaker students and people in hospitals, and colonies were happy and grateful to receive clothes, books, masks, and blankets. The special achievement of Mission Gyanodaya was, overcoming the initial resistance from their parents. As an extension of this activity, the students also collected clothes, shoes and bedding to help the needy. Our volunteers have evolved into very confident people who see themselves as socially useful citizens who matter.

It is worth noting that our volunteers participated in the Republic Day parade in Delhi for two consecutive years; Mrinal, Harsh and Aasthaa represented the state at the National Youth Parliament for three consecutive years. Aastha stood first in the country this year. The number of students selected from this college to attend National Level Camps has grown exponentially over the years.

Problems Encountered and Resources Required:

Excessive activities are expected to be conducted by NSS in a short span of time, so a planned calendar needs to be provided.
